If you look at these pics, you'll see the cam now has a large hole that the cable passes over. When the cable passes over the center of the hole your bow is perfectly timed

These holes are on the Mission and McPherson lines as well

The original 2 holes parallel to the string can still be done

From a dealers point of veiv I am really excited and happy about that...its going to make tuning a snap... for the basement techno whiz...a dream come true with duel cam
Awesome Job Mathews 🤔 🤔

thanks Vince

we are not using the 2 small holes in the cam like we use to..... we are now using the big hole where the cable runs through..... 😊

😊 Simplicity at its best...for the common shooter and those who dont have a press or do their own tuning...they will -at a glance know when their bow is out of tune and to bring the bow in for a spec tune...

👍👍 That is going to be so much easier than lining up the 2 holes in the cam like we used to have to do 🇺🇸
